PACK EXPO Las Vegas 2025 is Where the Industry will Gather!

Las Vegas was bustling with energy this week, not from the bright neon signs, casino floors, or thrilling show performances, but from the sights and sounds of the latest, ground-breaking packaging and processing technologies. New materials and machinery featuring robotics, AI, and automation technologies, to name a few, filled four halls of the Las Vegas Convention Center for PACK EXPO Las Vegas.

Produced by PMMI, The Association for Packaging and Processing Technologies, PACK EXPO Las Vegas, the largest and most comprehensive packaging and processing show this year, showed no signs of slowing down bringing together over 30,000 attendees and 20,000 exhibitor personnel for a total of 50,000 packaging and processing professionals in attendance. With over 2,300 exhibitors displaying the latest innovations across a record-breaking 1,000,000 net square feet of space, it was the biggest show floor since its debut 30 years ago.

INDIA AT THE PACK EXPO 2025

The India Pavilion had 10 booths with 8 exhibitors from different parts of the country displaying their products at the show. The India Branding was well appreciated by the exhibitors and visitors at the show. The feedback was good the first day with more footfalls than the second day. All the exhibitors were content to get their share of success in getting serious inquiries most of which may materialize later.

Though this was the first time Plexconcil was able to get space at this show, it was well represented along with other international pavilions in the same South Hall (Upper Level). The exhibitors' feedback was to have the location of the pavilion in the entrance of the hall.

Indian Mission Engagement

The Newly appointed Consul General of India, Los Angeles Dr. K. J. Srinivasa inaugurated the India Pavilion on the first day while interacting with the exhibitors and visiting the other pavilions to understand the market and the potential for Indian products at the show. He was very appreciative of the efforts taken by the Plexconcil in focusing on the packing industry and to host the first time at the large packaging show.
